Journey Became Tiresome - Description of Taking Guam-Heart of Governor Touched.

The following letter is to a prominent citizen of Honolulu:

Latitude 16 deg. 92 min. N., Longitude 130 deg. 20 min. E. Aboard Steamer Australia, Sunday, June 26, 198.

We are now twenty-two days out from Honolulu, and the journey is becoming rather tiresome and monotonous, though I did not care very much until a week ago.

The year 1878 will have no Friday, June 10, for me, as we crossed the 180th meridian at that time. It is quite a novelty to have an entire day drop out of one's life. On the morning of the 29th we sighted the Ladrone islands. One poor fellow on the Sydney died that same day and was buried at sea.

As we neared the island of Guam the transports stood out to sea, while the Charleston steamed into the harbor. When she reached a favorable point, she fired thirteen shots, and the Spaniards answered with a salute of two shots, using all their available powder. They did not know that war had been declared. When a lieutenant and a detail of men went ashore they said: "Sorry we could not answer your salute." "What Saluter said our lieutehant, "That was no salute, but shots from a hostile ship. We depand an immediate surrender." They were astonished, but refused to surrender until we landed forty marines and two companies of volunteers. I say "landed," but they did not quite land. The Dons surrendered when they saw us coming. The Governor of the Islands, his staff of four officers and fifty-four Spanish soldiers were taken, besides 7,200 rounds of aumunition, fifty-four Mauser rifles, fifty-four Remingtons and four Spanish flags. Fifty-four native soldiers, who were drilled but not armed, were given guns by Capt. Glass and released. When they realized they were free and the Spaniards were prisoners, they tore off their Spanish buttons, threw up their hats, and ran up town, acting as if wild. The Governor asked and was granted permission to write to his family. When the letter was finished, he handed it to the executive officer to read. That officer declined, saying "No, that is private." This kindness broke the old governor's heart, and he wept like a child. Thus we see that all Spaniards are not lost to every good trait.

Corps of Engineers For the Islands A Brigadier General.

Late San Francisco papers say that Secretary of War Alger, through Adjutant-General Corbin, is in correspondence with General Merriam regarding bar racks, officers' quarters and army hos-pital at Honolulu. Neither General Merriam nor the Adjutant General has as yet any definte notion about the character of the buildings that ought to be erected. Adjutant General Corbin has an idea that barracks and officers' quarters for about 2,200 officers and men should be built, and a hospital for the proper care of ninety patients at a time.

of ninety patients at a time.

General Merriam is to make proper recommendations on the subject, but will not be able to do so until he pays a visit to the Islands. By that time it is thought the Washington authorities will have made up their minds as to how many troops they want permanently stationed at Honoluiu.

at Honoiuiu.

Owing to an intimation received from Washington it will not surprise officers in the Fhelan building headquarters if a regiment of eight companies is organized from among the Hawaiian troops shortly after the arrival of the First New York on the Islands. In that event there will be enough troops to form a small brigade, and Colonel Barber, of the New York Regiment, will be made a Brigadier-General to command it. Such a turn of affairs is as a matter of fact expected by Colonel Barber's friends.

General Merriam has received instructions from Washington to take with him to Honoiuiu when he gets goady to depart, an army engineer, with several assistants, to make a report upon the best plan of fortifying Honolulu and its harbor.

sistants, to make a report upon the best plan of fortifying Honolulu and its harbor.

It is very likely that Colonel Barber, of the First New York Regiment of Volunteers, who is to be commandant of the new military post at Honolulu, will soon be made a brigadier general, probably before his departure for the Hawalian Islands. In addition to his own regiment, he will have under his command the Hawalian troops, numbering over 260 men, and the Third Battalion of the Second Regiment of United States Volunteer Engineers. This battalion of engineers numbers about 460 men, and has been stationed for some weeks at the Presidio, it is in command of Major Langitit.

The order which came from the War Department assigning the battalion to duly at Honolulu was made upon the recommendation of General Merriam. It will sail with the first detachment of the New York regiment and will at once be put at work upon arrival in preparing the new post. The command is composed of Company I of Denver, Compank K of Sait Lake, Company L of San Francisco and Company M of Portland, Or. The colonel of the regiment, Willard Young, is in Chicago, where the regimental headquarters and the First and Second battalions are located.

General Merriam has ordered the purchase and shipment of lumber necessary for the Honolulu post. Among the New Yorkers are several architects, civil engineers, carpenters, painters and mechanics of all kinds, whose services will, no doubt, be called into requisition in erecting the buildings and doing other work incidental to the establishment of the post.

A proposal has been made to maj-Gen. Otis for use of an inter island steamer to relieve the overcrowding on Pennsylvania. The the Peru and Pennsylvania. The major-general does not seem favorable to such a plan.

One of the Boys Writes Strangest Cases of Injury Known to Surgery.

Men With Eight Gunshot Wounds "Through and Through" Hits. Brother of Maul Man.

NEW YORK July 17 .- The chartered transport Olivette, which arrived off quarantine last night with 272 wounded soldiers from Cuba, docked today at the foot of Pacific street, Brooklyn.

Among the wounded men are somof the most extraordinary cases of injury known to surgical history. There are men who can show as many as eight builet holes and by all the traditions of surgery they ought to be dead. Men who were shot through the kidneys, liver, or lungs, are able to walk around. (A soldler who was shot straight through the brain has lost the sight of one eye, otherwise he is sound. Another man who was shot through the head just above the ears was able to sit up the day after the boat left Cuba.

"Most of the wounds were clean cut, and the bullets when removed were not deformed. Although we found nothing to complain of in this line, we found something which we regarded as much worse—bullets cased in brass. Verdigris formed on the jacket of the bullet before it was extracted, and resuited in suppuration of a poisonous character.

"The worst wound to be found upon the ship is borne by Norman Orme, of Company E. First Volunteer Cavalry, the Rough Riders. The Spanish bullet atruck Orme in the left arm, just above the elbow, and plerced it. Passing out, it entered the upper arm, producing a fracture. The bullet passed out again and entered Orme's body, just below the left armpit, ranging down ward, passing through his lung and finally was checked by a rib. Orme has a very good chance for recovery The bullet must have passed the man's heart between beats-between the diastole and systole, and so escaped injuring that organ."

(It is believed that this Norman Orme has a brother on Maul.)

Colonel Parker addressed, in the English language, without the aid of an interpreter, a large audience of natives in the Hawaiian church, last ev-ening. He told the story of a little child, the story of Christ, and dwelt upon the needs and use of the home. Rev. H. H.
